City might license Times Square crowd

Council. City legislature wants Joker, Elmo, Batman to pay for plying their trade.

City Council members want to keep closer tabs on costumed characters who interact with the 500,000 people who pass through Times Square daily.

At a hearing Wednesday on a bill that would require the characters to obtain a license through the Department of Consumer Affairs, performers said they were concerned by the fingerprinting requirement and what they called the arbitrary line between asking tourists for tips in exchange for a photograph and a misdemeanor charge of "aggressive panhandling."

"I'm a law-abiding citizen," said Keith Albahae, who dresses as the Joker in Times Square. "If I need to be fingerprinted, every one should be."

Bronx Councilman Andy King, who sponsored the bill, said he grew concerned a year ago when Dan Sandler, who performed as Elmo in Times Square was arrested last year for disorderly conduct.

The proposed law would require a permit for characters who conceal or alter their appearance with a mask or makeup. The $175 license would be valid for two years, with a one-time $75 fingerprinting fee.

While the bill's language prohibits police from asking about a costumed character's immigration status, New York City Artists United for a Smile and immigrant activist group La Fuente said the licensing will track immigrant performers who might be in the country illegally.

King said the bill is not about immigration or "trickery."

"At the end of the day, we want everyone to be respected," King said.

"We have to come up with ... a system where there is some kind of filter to make sure that people with a prior aggressive criminal record can't get a license," said Tim Tompkins, president of Times Square Alliance. "We do not want this to be a backhanded way to affect people's immigration status."

Fordham law professor Jim Cohen said the bill wouldn't pass a First Amendment challenge.

Uber mean*Lymphoma patient told she deserves cancer

Embattled ride-share service Uber today apologized after one of its drivers told a woman undergoing cancer treatment who had cancelled an Uber ride, that she was "not human."

Spokeswoman Arielle Goren said the company regretted the "absolutely terrible incident."

"I think you deserve what happened to you with such a [character]," an unidentified Uber driver wrote in a text message to 25-year-old Alexandra Craigle, an NYC native who was diagnosed with lymphoma in 2012.

Craigle canceled a ride within five minutes of requesting it on Nov. 10.

Quoted

"You hang up the phone and cancel the trip ... go see a head doctor too."

Uber driver

Uber said Craigle's would-be driver was promptly deactivated after a complaint was submitted to the car service. Goren said Craigle was issued credit for future Uber rides.

Earlier this week, Uber came under fire when company official Emil Michael told dinner guests the company could combat negative press by spending a "million dollars" on digging up dirt on journalists who criticize the brand, BuzzFeed.com reported.

The Seven Deadly Sins of Uber

Transportation.

The fast-growing ride-share service has hit some potholes recently.

Uber of sabotaging its business by ordering and canceling rides. Lyft reportedly cross-referenced the cellphone numbers of canceled rides with those of Uber drivers. Uber denied this but did admit to recruiting Lyft drivers.

Metro takes a look at what ails Uber, despite its popularity.

1 Sloth: Uber charges riders a "safe ride fee." So you want to ride safely during a car ride you're paying for? Uber's U.S. customers are charged a lazy extra dollar on their trip to fund "background checks" and safety screening.

2 Pride: Uber Sr. VP Emil Michael said the company could spend money digging up dirt on journalists who wrote unflatteringly about the company.

3 Greed: Uber surges its prices to extreme amounts. When cabs are scarce prices rise. To $91 for three miles!

4 Envy: Lyft sabotage. Ride-sharing competitor Lyft accused

5 Lust: In regular cabs there's usually a giant partition to save you. Since at least 2013, allegations of harassment, abuse and even rape from Uber drivers have been coming from riders of the service.

6 Gluttony: Uber may be over estimating what drivers make. In May, Uber posted a blog entry saying the median income of UberX drivers in New York City was $90,766. Slate.com crunched the numbers: yearly incomes come closer to $50,000.

7 Wrath: Uber driver tells cancer patient, "You're not human." Do you want to hear it again?

Pot. Activists skeptical as policy takes effect

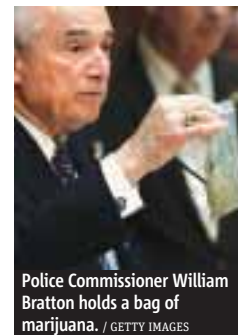

Police will no longer arrest people in New York City for carrying up to 25 grams of cannabis under new orders to cops from Mayor Bill de Blasio and Police Commissioner William Bratton.

Possessing weed will now be the equivalent of getting caught speeding, with cops able only to issue a summons to people found in possession of small amounts of the drug.

Laws decriminalizing marijuana possession were first passed in 1977 and reaffirmed in 2011 by then-Police Commissioner Ray Kelly.

A poll by Quinnipiac University showed 71 percent of New Yorkers approved the policy. Marijuana rights activists are more skeptical.

"We don't know what it means yet," said Adam Scavone, co-founder of the NY Cannabis Alliance. "We still have 30,000 arrests despite the fact that New York decriminalized marijuana back in 1977."

Colorado, California, Oregon, Alaska and Washington, D.C. have already legalized the sale and possession of marijuana.

"What we hope [the policy] means is that fewer people will be arrested," said Danny Danko, a member of cannabis legalization nonprofit NORML. "We view it as a step in the right direction." METRO

Obama to announce go-it-alone plan on immigration tonight

Immigration.

President's plan on deportations will aid immigrants, set up confrontation with Congress.

President Barack Obama will outline a plan on Thursday to relax U.S. immigration policy and grant relief from deportation to as many as 5 million undocumented immigrants in a go-it-alone move that will deepen a partisan divide with Republicans.

The White House said Obama will deliver a televised speech on Thursday night laying out the plan, followed by a trip to Las Vegas on Friday to build support. Nevada is home to the highest proportion of undocumented immigrants in the country.

Frustrated by years of congressional inaction on what most in Washington agree is a broken immigration system, Obama said in a Web video posting that he is now prepared to act unilaterally.

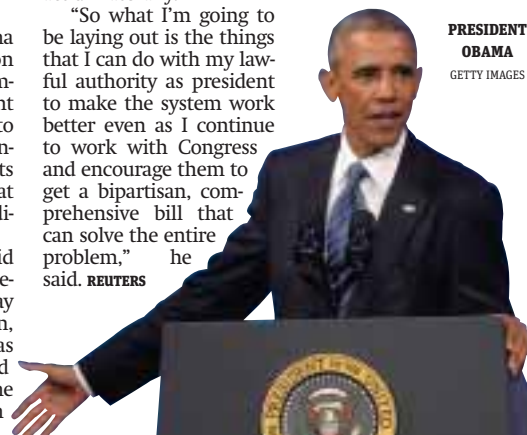

"So what I'm going to be laying out is the things that I can do with my lawful authority as president to make the system work better even as I continue to work with Congress and encourage them to get a bipartisan, comprehensive bill that can solve the entire problem," he said. REUTERS

This Is How To Walk the Walk

*The must-have men's accessory once carried by kings, presidents, barons and billionaires is back—and can be yours for ONLY $49!

They call walking the “perfect exercise.” It gets your heart pumping, clears your head and fills your lungs with fresh air. Not bad, but we found a way to make it even better. Before you take your next 10,000 steps, add a little strut to your stroll. Take the Stauer Gentleman's Walking Stick anywhere and I promise that you'll feel like a conquering hero. Heads will turn. Doors will open. Its powers will astound you.

What's the secret? Pure class. Our Stauer Gentleman's Walking Stick is a tip of the top hat to turn-of-the-century tradition. Today, serious collectors gladly pay thousands for rare and handcrafted sticks from the 19th century. But only Stauer can deliver a modern version of this vintage classic—that looks and feels as good as the original—for ONLY $49!

Sticks that make a statement. For centuries, no respectable man was seen in public without a walking stick by his side. They were as indispensable as a fine tailored suit or fancy moustache. Well-heeled men “wore” them as symbols of power and prestige, using elaborately decorated staffs to help navigate trails, dispatch opponents or conceal gadgets and contraband. Simply put, they were the must-have accessory for any sharp-dressed man on the move.

The ultimate travel companion. Hold it once and you can feel that it's not some hollow imitation. Our Gentleman's Walking Stick is crafted from a solid shaft of imported Sheesham (Indian Rosewood) and finished with layers of black lacquer. The rounded, knob-style head has serious weight and the silver-finished brass features an elegant engraved design that adds flair while improving your grip. And a black rubber tip steadies your stance on all sorts of surfaces from dirt and asphalt walkways to marble floors and Persian rugs.

*Hand-carved detail

Could Obama cut deal on Keystone pipeline?

President Barack Obama might be open to using the Keystone pipeline as leverage with Republicans if they cooperate on other aspects of his long-stalled domestic agenda, such as investing in infrastructure, closing tax loopholes or reducing carbon emissions.

After years of fighting over TransCanada's crude oil pipeline from Canada, a Keystone deal is not entirely out of the question, sources inside the administration and others close to the White House told Reuters.

With the Senate's narrow defeat of a Keystone bill on Tuesday, Obama avoided the awkward position of possibly vetoing a bill supported by members of his own Democratic party. But the issue will come up again soon after the new year when Republicans, who already control the House of Representatives, take charge of the Senate as well.

Any deal would have to yield concrete gains for Obama on his agenda.

Republicans stop overhaul of NSA reform

Privacy. Plan to rein in government data collection fails amid fears of harming anti-terror efforts.

strongly against the bill in a Senate speech on Tuesday morning, concerns matched by several hawkish Republicans, including former government officials.

The legislation was the first considered by the full Senate that addressed privacy concerns raised last year after revelations by former NSA contractor Edward Snowden showing U.S. intelligence was collecting and storing communications metadata, such as the records of millions of Americans' telephone calls.

Among other things, the bill would have required the NSA to ask a communications company for records of a specific person when investigating a terrorism case, rather than indiscriminately sweeping up records.

The House passed a similar, but less restrictive version of the bill earlier this year. The White House had supported the legislation, denying assertions that it would benefit terrorist groups. REUTERS

A bill to end the National Security Agency's (NSA) bulk collection of telephone records failed on a procedural vote in the Senate on Tuesday after senior Republicans said it would benefit enemies of the United States, including Islamic State militants.

The "USA Freedom Act" was supported by an unusual coalition of Democrats and conservative Republicans concerned about Americans' privacy, but failed 58 to 42, falling short of the 60 votes needed to move ahead.

The measure is unlikely to become law anytime soon, as Republicans will hold a majority of seats in the Senate after Jan. 1.

On edge. Israelis, Palestinians seek personal safety in holy city

On edge but faithful to their religious routine, worshippers returned on Wednesday to the Jerusalem synagogue where four rabbis and a policeman were killed in a Palestinian attack a day earlier.

The bloodstains had been washed away, but four memorial candles burned as about a dozen men chanted their daily prayers and police newly stationed outside guarded the Kehillat Bnei Torah congregation.

Palestinians in Israeli-annexed East Jerusalem also voiced fears for their safety amid the surge in violence, as police set up checkpoints in their neighborhoods and tethered surveillance balloons floated overhead.

Violence in Jerusalem has surged since July, when a Palestinian teen was burned to death by Israeli assailants in an alleged revenge for the abduction

Expert on nuclear talks. 'The danger of Iranian nuclear weapons has been overstated'

The international community and Iran have set a deadline of November 24 to come to an agreement in the dispute over Iran's nuclear program, a conflict that has dragged on for years. What's at stake? "The U.S. will probably allow Iran to save face and maintain some enrichment capacity," Ivan Eland, senior fellow and director of the Center on Peace & Liberty at The Independent Institute, tells Metro.

What does Iran want?

Iran may want a nuclear weapon, but that has never been clear. The U.S. intelligence community says that Iran has not made the decision to take steps to get a weapon. It is also not clear whether the new leadership has abandoned this goal — if it were ever the goal — in the wake of international sanctions. Certainly, Iran would want to exercise its rights as a signatory to the Nucle-

Ivan Eland / METRO WORLD NEWS

Question

How are the talks expected to go?

I would predict that a final agreement will eventually be reached. Iran seems to want to end its international isolation, and it knows that a failure to reach an agreement will bring renewed calls for military action against its nuclear facilities. Obama, an unpopular president late in his term in office, also needs an agreement. Yet, an alternative future may arise: Negotiations could be stretched out, one way or the other.

What does the U.S. want?

To prevent Iran from getting a nuclear weapon. Also, the U.S. wants to prevent Iran from having a "breakout capability" — that is the ability to move rapidly toward nuclear weapons.

What problems could an Iranian nuclear program cause? Who is in danger?

The danger is really not to U.S. security but to that of Israel and Europe.

What will happen after the talks?

If negotiations fail, I see renewed pressure from Israel and U.S. hawks to take military action against Iran. But such action will likely not destroy all of Iran's nuclear facilities. It will set back Iran's nuclear program for a while but will motivate them to get nuclear weapons more quickly. If negotiations succeed, look for continued Iranian nuclear enrichment but increased international monitoring and safeguards.

Western NY buried by snow, seven dead

Western New York state braced for a fresh wave of heavy snow on Wednesday after a freakish storm swept off the Great Lakes and buried the region under 5 feet of it, killing at least seven people and stranding motorists in cars. The autumn snowstorm has already left accumulations that are remarkable even for the Buffalo area, where heavy snowfalls and frigid winter weather are the norm. REUTERS

Canada's goodwill ambassador has reportedly been devoting his time to celebrity pastor Carl Lentz of Hillsong Church. And by "devoting," I mean he "exiled himself from friends, alcohol, weed and everything else that doesn't involve the good Lord" for two weeks at Lentz's Rancho Mirage compound near Palm Springs, California, at least according to TMZ. ## 2 New Sexiest Man Alive drunk with power

Chris Hemsworth is officially People magazine's new Sexiest Man Alive, and unfortunately it looks like the "Thor" star plans on using his newfound powers for evil, not good. "I'll put it on the mantelpiece just to remind [my wife] in the coming years," he tells the magazine about how he plans to use the accolade. "I can just say to her, 'Now remember, this is what the people think, so I don't need to do the dishes anymore, I don't need to change [diapers]. I'm above that. I've made it now.' I'd rethink that strategy if I were you, buddy."

A New Kid on 'The McCarthys'

Interview. A new CBS sitcom set in Boston made an important casting decision: the addition of a member of New Kids on the Block.

With Joey McIntyre on "The McCarthys" and Donnie Wahlberg on "Blue Bloods," CBS is now at 20 percent New Kids on the Block saturation. "We're on different nights, so that's good. We can get one more half-hour out of [the fans]," McIntyre jokes. But those Blockheads — fans of the boy band — are showing their support. "They're very excited about the show. I think, of course, they're going to be inclined to like something that I'm on or one of us is on, but they're a good audience;

they're a smart audience."

McIntyre stars as one of the McCarthys, a Boston family that includes twins Gerard (McIntyre) and Sean (Jimmy Dunn) along with brother Ronny (Tyler Ritter) and sister Jackie (Kelen Coleman), all under the leadership of parents Arthur (Jack McGee) and Marjorie (Laurie Metcalf).

This isn't the first time McIntyre has put his Boston roots to work for an acting gig. McIntyre played one of Melissa McCarthy's brothers in last year's "The Heat," though he says the two families are very different.

"There is a certain aspect to it, a certain niche that Boston brings — an Irish Boston kind of chip on your shoulder, working-class mentality, very opinionated," he says. "There's a certain thing that I think Boston people have, a point of view. And certainly that was the kickoff of where 'The McCarthys' came from. That family in 'The Heat' is similar, but with the "F" word. I mean, the McCarthys would be very, very insulted if you compared us to that family. We think we're much better than that."

If there's a downside to his career as a New Kid, it's the timing when it comes to the average age of his fans — he's never really gotten to indulge in groupie culture. "Back then they were young girls, teenagers, going crazy and figuring all sorts of stuff out," he explains. "Back then they were too young, and now they're all beautiful women — and I'm married and happy. Couldn't enjoy you then and can't enjoy you now."

A New Kid's take on the boy band revival

So what does Joey McIntyre think of One Direction and the current boy band resurgence? "It comes in cycles, you know what I mean? You talk about the Jackson 5 and the Osmonds, then New Kids and then Backstreet Boys and *NSYNC. And then we take a break," McIntyre says. "But One Direction doesn't come around every day, you know what I mean? And that's just a massive thing. I'm happy for them. Seems like they're making good pop music and they're good guys. I think they should dance a little bit more, but other than that they seem like good guys."

ADMIT ONE

Metro rounds up
what's in cinemas
this week.

MATT PRIGGE
matt.prigge@metro.us

1 'The Hunger Games: Mockingjay — Part 1'

Suzanne Collins' dystopian saga is the latest to have one of its books divided in two, though this means all the big action is pushed off until "Part 2," which won't come out for another year. But hey, there's plenty of business about the grunt work of revolutions!

2 'Happy Valley' The latest hot-button film from documentarian Amir Bar-Lev ("The Tillman Story") examines Penn State in the fallout from the Jim Sandusky

tragedy, with a university struggling to find a second life amidst scandal.

3 'A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night' The world's first — and hopefully not last — feminist Iranian vampire Western love story, the debut of Ana Lily Amirpour follows a chador-clad loner (Sheila Vand) who plunges her fangs into the necks of those who oppress and abuse women.

4 'Pulp: A Film About Life, Death & Supermarkets' Not just another Great Band

documentary, this follows the Sheffield legends as they celebrate their 25th anniversary with a concert in their hometown, with numbers from the show mixed with reflections plus expressionistic interludes.

5 'V/H/S/Viral' The found-footage horror anthology series — whose films are rarely, if ever, actually shot on VHS — gets a third go, this time with a short from "Timecrimes" and "Open Windows" perpetrator Nacho Vigalando.

6 'Extraterrestrial' In a slight twist on the genre of youngsters at a cabin being picked off one by one, this horror film pits our dwindling cast against alien invaders — as well as, awesomely, a crazy, conspiracy-theorizing coot played by the great Michael Ironside.

7 'Reach Me' Sylvester Stallone takes a break from fogey fighting movies to do an ensemble drama, as one of several famous actors — including, amusingly, fellow "Expendables" alumni Terry Crews and Kelsey Grammer — united by a motivational book.

8 'Dumb and Dumber To' Jim Carrey and Jeff Daniels dust off some 20-year-old jokes, but can it ever really be as funny as any episode of "The Newsroom"?

9 'Beyond the Lights' "Belle"'s Gugu Mbatha-Raw plays a reluctant Beyonce type torn between fame and an unfailing — and often shirtless — gentleman (Nate Parker) who wants her to give it all up and defy her domineering stage mom (Minnie Driver).

People tend to find anything "Mockingjay" star Jennifer Lawrence does endearing, so here's an image of her in a jacket looking at a white rose. / MURRAY CLOSE

Arquette: The photo leak is 'societal molestation'

PATRICIA ARQUETTE

GETTY IMAGES

Interview. The actress lashes out at the public for viewing naked pics.

Since signing on to star in the upcoming "CSI: Cyber," Patricia Arquette has gotten an intimate look at the dark side of technology. "We brought these devices into our homes, but the things that they're capable of are also terrifying," she says. "The amount of brilliant people spending their brilliance to do terrible things is stunning."

But when it comes to the massive leak of celebrity nude photos from earlier this year — with a long list of victims including Jennifer Lawrence, Gabrielle Union, and Kate Upton — Arquette sees fault in more than just the hackers themselves.

"I think there's a real love-hate relationship that people have with celebrities. If it was wives of army soldiers in Afghanistan or

Arquette plays a cyber crime investigator on the upcoming series "CSI: Cyber." / CBS

Iraq that had their nude photos taken that they'd sent their husbands, I think there might have been a different response from the public," Arquette says. "But the truth is, as an actor you do spend months away from your partner. And to maintain fidelity with each other, you want to share intimacies with your beloved, and there's nothing deviant about that. The deviant thing is when other people feel they have a right to impose themselves into your private sexuality," she says, adding, "A community that would blame the victim — that is deviant behavior. And we have to be very careful what we teach our children; that is not acceptable, the same way that I would teach my son not to force himself on a woman when she says no. I would teach my child that's their private sexuality.

"Basically, I consider it a societal molestation when people share other people's sexuality that they didn't give to them."

Step it up with cashmere

How to wash

"Hand washing is great — use a mild hand wash soap or special cashmere one," advises Bell. "Soak the garment, then gently agitate it in the water. Rinse in clean warm water until no soap remains, then squeeze out the water." But never wring your cashmere items, she warns. It stretches the garment and the fibers. To get it back to its natural shape, just give your sweater a shake. "Then lay it flat to dry. You can give it a gentle spin in the washing machine first," Bells says. For a finishing touch, bust out the iron. "But don't iron directly on cashmere, or any kind of wool, as it burns the fiber," says Bell. "Use a damp lightweight cloth and lay it on top of the sweater, then press with an iron."

Wardrobe. How to care for the luxury winter staple.

Just like her sweaters, Angela Bell was made in Hawick, Scotland, where high-quality cashmere has been produced since the 1800s. "My parents worked in the industry, my grand-parents, too, so it's kind of in my blood," she explains. A senior designer at Pringle of Scotland, she decided in 2000 to launch her own label, Queene and Belle. Around the same time, cashmere started to become more accessible and used by mass retailers. "For years, it was only made in Scotland and Italy, but in the last 15 to 20 years, cashmere has been made in other countries like China, which have brought the costs down," she says. Although it's now readily available, it's not throwaway fashion. To help sift the rough from the smooth, Bell shares her guide to cashmere.

Post-wear tips

Don't leave your luxe cashmere lying around the house, says the expert. "Fold it up and keep it in a sealable bag away from the dreaded moths that like to eat the fabric," she says. "And keep a cedar ball in the bag as an extra safety measure." Another tip: "Wash your cashmere regularly, as it will revitalize the fibers and keep any pilling to a minimum," says Bell.

PLUS

Before you buy

What to look for

"Make sure the composition label reads 100 percent cashmere, simply because there are an awful lot of cashmere mixes out there," says Bell. "Make sure the garment has a close, even knit. Always remember a good cashmere shouldn't be too hairy, fuzzy or overly soft. It also needs to have the correct twist per inch: If it's too tight, the garment feels too hard, and if it's too loose, it will pill easily."

Tips for singles at Thanksgiving

Families. A life coach explains how to handle awkward relationship conversations.

No matter how much you love your family, gathering together for Thanksgiving can be a stressful experience — particularly if you're single and don't feel like talking about your personal life over dinner.

"I would just say to your family 'Thank you for caring,'" says Sonia Choquette, a life coach and the author of "Walking Home: A Pilgrimage From Humbled to Healed." "Don't get defensive. Just say, 'I'm so grateful that you care about me. Being single is a choice that I am making because it's good for me right now.'"

Choquette offers these pointers for having an emotionally healthy holiday with your fam.

Think the best of their intentions

"With families, generally we do love each other," she says. "Your family isn't going to set you up to fail."

Try not to throw your drink at anyone if they ask about your relationship status. / PHOTOS.COM

Prepare yourself

Say things out loud

"Before you go, acknowledge your fears," advises Choquette. "Say 'My fear is that I am being left behind,' [for example]. I have found that if you acknowledge them out loud and empty the garbage of your fears, things will be better. This is just a temporary experience."

It might be a good idea to call your parents before Thanksgiving and tell them that: "What you want to do is say, 'I am in a difficult period right now, but I'm really looking forward to coming home.'"

Change the subject

"You play a role in how your family treats you," says Choquette. "Be the person who asks lots of questions."

Be kind to yourself

Remember not to assume that everyone is judging you, says Choquette. "It's really important to recognize that those thoughts are fears, not facts," she adds. "Relationships, you have to remember — whether they are friends or a couple or family — are just two complicated people trying to find common ground," she says.

FOR ADULTS WITH TYPE 2 DIABETES

Januvia® works
when my blood sugar
is HIGH...

...and works less
when my
blood sugar
is LOW.

Actor portrayal.

JANUVIA works by enhancing your body's own ability to lower blood sugar.

- JANUVIA is a prescription pill you take once a day.
- JANUVIA, along with diet and exercise, helps lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause blood sugar going too low (hypoglycemia), because it works less when blood sugar is low.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause weight gain.

JANUVIA (jah-NEW-vee-ah) should not be used in patients with type 1 diabetes or with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in the blood or urine). If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting it while taking JANUVIA.

Selected Risk Information About JANUVIA

Serious side effects can happen in people who take JANUVIA, including pancreatitis, which may be severe and lead to death. Before you start taking JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you've ever had pancreatitis. Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

Do not take JANUVIA if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including sitagliptin. Symptoms of serious allergic reactions to JANUVIA, including rash, hives, and swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty breathing or swallowing, can occur. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away.

Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis, have been reported.

If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include headache, drowsiness, weakness, dizziness, confusion, irritability, hunger, fast heart beat, sweating, and feeling jittery.

Please read the Medication Guide on the adjacent page for more detailed information.

Merck Helps™ Having trouble paying for your Merck medicine? Merck may be able to help. www.merck.com/merckhelps

Your doctor may do blood tests before and during treatment with JANUVIA to see how well your kidneys are working. Based on these results, your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA. The most common side effects of JANUVIA are upper respiratory tract infection, stuffy or runny nose and sore throat, and headache.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Medication Guide

JANUVIA® (jah-NEW-vee-ah) (sitagliptin) Tablets

Read this Medication Guide carefully before you start taking JANUVIA and each time you get a refill. There may be new information. This information does not take the place of talking with your doctor about your medical condition or your treatment. If you have any questions about JANUVIA, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?

Serious side effects can happen in people taking JANUVIA, including inflammation of the pancreas (pancreatitis) which may be severe and lead to death.

Certain medical problems make you more likely to get pancreatitis.

Before you start taking JANUVIA:

Tell your doctor if you have ever had

- pancreatitis
- stones in your gallbladder (gallstones)
- a history of alcoholism
- high blood triglyceride levels
- kidney problems

Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

What is JANUVIA?

- JANUVIA is a prescription medicine used along with diet and exercise to lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with type 1 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in your blood or urine).
- If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas) in the past, it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting pancreatitis while you take JANUVIA.
- It is not known if JANUVIA is safe and effective when used in children under 18 years of age.

Who should not take JANUVIA?

Do not take JANUVIA if:

- you are allergic to any of the ingredients in JANUVIA. See the end of this Medication Guide for a complete list of ingredients in JANUVIA.

Symptoms of a serious allergic reaction to JANUVIA may include:

- rash
- raised red patches on your skin (hives)
- swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty in breathing or swallowing

What should I tell my doctor before taking JANUVIA?

Before you take JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you:

- have or have had inflammation of your pancreas (pancreatitis).
- have kidney problems.
- have any other medical conditions.
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if JANUVIA will harm your unborn baby. If you are pregnant, talk with your doctor about the best way to control your blood sugar while you are pregnant.

Pregnancy Registry: If you take JANUVIA at any time during your pregnancy, talk with your doctor about how you can join the JANUVIA pregnancy registry. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. You can enroll in this registry by calling 1-800-986-8999.

- are breast-feeding or plan to breast-feed. It is not known if JANUVIA will pass into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby if you are taking JANUVIA.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Know the medicines you take. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your doctor and pharmacist when you take a new medicine.

How should I take JANUVIA?

- Take JANUVIA 1 time each day exactly as your doctor tells you.
- You can take JANUVIA with or without food.
- Your doctor may do blood tests from time to time to see how well your kidneys are working. Your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA based on the results of your blood tests.
- Your doctor may tell you to take JANUVIA along with other diabetes medicines. Low blood sugar can happen more often when JANUVIA is taken with certain other diabetes medicines. See “What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?”.
- If you miss a dose, take it as soon as you remember. If you do not remember until it is time for your next dose, skip the missed dose and go back to your regular schedule. Do not take two doses of JANUVIA at the same time.
- If you take too much JANUVIA, call your doctor or local Poison Control Center right away.
- When your body is under some types of stress, such as fever, trauma (such as a car accident), infection or surgery, the amount of diabetes medicine that you need may change. Tell your doctor right away if you have any of these conditions and follow your doctor's instructions.
- Check your blood sugar as your doctor tells you to.

- Stay on your prescribed diet and exercise program while taking JANUVIA.
- Talk to your doctor about how to prevent, recognize and manage low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), high blood sugar (hyperglycemia), and problems you have because of your diabetes.
- Your doctor will check your diabetes with regular blood tests, including your blood sugar levels and your hemoglobin A1C.

What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?

Serious side effects have happened in people taking JANUVIA.

- See “What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?”.
- Low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar, such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include:
  - headache
  - drowsiness
  - weakness
  - dizziness
  - confusion
  - irritability
  - hunger
  - fast heart beat
  - sweating
  - feeling jittery
- Serious allergic reactions. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away. See “Who should not take JANUVIA?”. Your doctor may give you a medicine for your allergic reaction and prescribe a different medicine for your diabetes.
- Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis

The most common side effects of JANUVIA include:

- upper respiratory infection
- stuffy or runny nose and sore throat
- headache

JANUVIA may have other side effects, including:

- stomach upset and diarrhea
- swelling of the hands or legs, when JANUVIA is used with rosiglitazone (Avandia®). Rosiglitazone is another type of diabetes medicine.

These are not all the possible side effects of JANUVIA. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you, is unusual or does not go away.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

How should I store JANUVIA?

Store JANUVIA at 68°F to 77°F (20°C to 25°C).

Keep JANUVIA and all medicines out of the reach of children.

General information about the use of JANUVIA

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes that are not listed in Medication Guides. Do not use JANUVIA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give JANUVIA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Medication Guide summarizes the most important information about JANUVIA. If you would like to know more information, talk with your doctor. You can ask your doctor or pharmacist for additional information about JANUVIA that is written for health professionals. For more information, go to www.JANUVIA.com or call 1-800-622-4477.

What are the ingredients in JANUVIA?

Active ingredient: sitagliptin

Inactive ingredients: microcrystalline cellulose, anhydrous dibasic calcium phosphate, croscarmellose sodium, magnesium stearate, and sodium stearyl fumarate. The tablet film coating contains the following inactive ingredients: polyvinyl alcohol, polyethylene glycol, talc, titanium dioxide, red iron oxide, and yellow iron oxide.

What is type 2 diabetes?

Type 2 diabetes is a condition in which your body does not make enough insulin, and the insulin that your body produces does not work as well as it should. Your body can also make too much sugar. When this happens, sugar (glucose) builds up in the blood. This can lead to serious medical problems.

High blood sugar can be lowered by diet and exercise, and by certain medicines when necessary.

OkCupid just rolled out a bunch of new ways to self-identify

Dating. There are now options for those who don't fit inside a box.

Online daters who have updated their OkCupid accounts recently might have noticed something different in the "About Me" section: a slew of new ways to describe one's gender and sexuality.

Mic.com reports that select users of the popular dating site have the option of identifying as "Demisexual," "Heteroflexible" and "Pansexual" among other terms in the sexual orientation section.

The daters who have been offered the new options can also now choose from 20 words to describe their gender, words that include "Transconforming," "Other" and "Genderfluid."

While the site did not officially announce the new changes, it has been hailed as a welcome change by many blogs.

OkCupid is being praised for the new additions. / STOCKBYTE

Options

A growing trend

OkCupid joins Facebook and Match.com on the list of social media sites that have updated their gender options in recent months, perhaps in response to a Change.org petition launched last year demanding that the site update its gender and sexuality options because "these binaries do not fit for all of us."

App

Only singles that make the grade can pass go

What if there was an app that automatically screened out the creeps that are every online dater's worst nightmare?

The new app The Grade says it's trying to do just that. The program's new algorithm assigns a letter grade to each of its users based on the way they interact with others. Anyone who gets an F in online dating automatically gets kicked off of The Grade.

But don't worry if you simply aren't good at Internet dating. Users who earn Cs on the app will get some extra help — in the form of tips for getting better at the game of love.

Wine

Beaujolais
Nouveau

The U.S. doesn't have a monopoly on holidays this month. France is excited about wine throughout the year, but never more so than during the harvest season, which is celebrated on the third Thursday each November by cracking open the first bottles from their sun-dappled vineyards before winter sweeps in. Beginning today at noon, all Tour de France Restaurant Group eateries will be serving this year's selection, Terres Dorées, by organic grower Jean-Paul Brun. The wine is $10 by the glass or $40 by the bottle.

Find Terres Dorées at these eight spots:

Sweet reprieve

This could be your baking year! But we're not liking our chances; here's where we're picking up our treats.

We're all friends here, so let's skip the empty promises and talk straight for a minute: If you don't regularly make pies, your pie is not going to be a good pie. It's quite possible that it will not even resemble a pie, let alone depart its fussy pie pan in tidy pie formation. And let's not even start on the bread and rolls, which are often forgotten (what will your sandwich go on the next day, hmm?) No, well-meaning guests and hosts, baking is not for the weak. Do your entire dinner party a favor and let one of these fine bakeries handle things this year.

Sweet

Pie enthusiasts, you're going to want to have a seat. Not only does Balthazar Bakery (80 Spring St.) have the classics covered, but this year's menu also includes the Maple-Pecan and Sweet Potato Pie (the two traditional fillings are layered together in the ho-

Breads Bakery

This spot is up to the sweet challenge of the holiday, serving everything from the traditional pie trifecta (apple, pecan, pumpkin) to a fruit tarte and your new favorite, the Chocolate Caramel Pie that's almost too pretty to eat — if you could only resist. They also have your sides covered, with a cranberry chutney and butternut squash puree. Closed on Thanksgiving day; place orders either at the bakery (18 E. 16th St.) or by phone at 212-633-BAKE.

liest of matrimonyes) and the Chocolate Bourbon Pecan Pie. Daintier offerings include a tart sampler and their signature almond petits fours.

In addition to their tried-and-true classics, Magnolia Bakery (www.magnoliabakery.com) has added three new pies to the family this year. Call ahead to order the Caramel Apple (it's as gooey as it sounds), the Cranberry-Pear Pecan Crumble (which won the employee baking contest) and the crunch-topped Pumpkin Praline. Full disclosure: We're cleaning out their stash of pumpkin spice whoopie pies, so get there early.

Got someone not keen on the season's flavors? Give them a tried-and-true classic in a whole new way with a Chocolate Chip Pie from Tate's Bake Shop (www.tatesbakeshop.com), where Kathleen King transformed their award-winning cookie into pie form. Serve it warm and top with a scoop of ice cream!

Savory

Blue Ribbon Bakery Market (14 Bedford St.) is your secret weapon, but no one has to know. In addition to the crowd-pleasing rye loaf, chocolate babka and challah doughnuts (run, don't walk), you can also order a free-range Misty Knoll Farms turkey with cajun rub, stuffing and cranberry sauce, and side dishes like roasted Brussels sprouts and quiches. Order by Nov. 24 at noon.

Yes, Momofuku Milk Bar (www.milkbarstore.com) has brought back the infamous Thanksgiving Croissant for an encore. (Oh, you two haven't met? It goes like this: stuffing-flavored dough, turkey, gravy, cranberry sauce, nap-time.) As for the sweeter treats, this year's specials include pumpkin pie cake and truffles, available for pick-up in all six locations as well as for online shipping.

Dessert

Special treats

We're going with the Pecan-Chocolate Caramel Tart, an Apple Cinnamon Crumble and, of course, a few macarons for the road at French patisserie Mille-Feuille (552 Laguardia Place, 2175 Broadway).

BabyCakes (248 Broome St.) has pretty much everyone's lifestyles, allergies, diets and whining covered with a vegan, kosher menu that's completely devoid of gluten, wheat, soy, dairy, eggs and refined sugar. Pastry chef Erin McKenna is also serving pumpkin crumb cake and madeleines.

The only thing better than eating your favorite desserts this time of year is drinking them, but who wants all that sugar and artificial ingredients? The DAVIDsTEA (www.davidstea.com) Winter Collection will transport you to a Sugar Plum Forest, reimagine a holiday favorite with Apple Custard, and treat oolong fans Bubbie's Baklava.

Downtown Thanksgiving. Take your party below 14th Street

Mas (farmhouse)

$88 (four courses) to $120 (six courses), 29 Downing St. Specializing in upscale meat-and-potatoes fare, Mas (farmhouse) is serving pretty much exactly what you'd serve — only far, far better.

Saxon + Parole

$80 ($40 for children), 316 Bowery In addition to a three-course meal that concludes with a "tower of treats," they're sending guests off with a warm cup of apple cider. In addition to turkey, guests can also choose from ricotta gnudi, stuffed branzino and a dry-aged New York strip steak.

Back Forty

$65-$70 per person, 190 Ave. B and 70 Prince St. The family-style menu includes old standbys (sweet potatoes with roasted ham hocks; chestnut and sage stuffing) as well as more adventurous fare such as five-spiced turkey legs.

DBGB Kitchen and Bar

$60 ($25 for children), 299 Bowery Daniel Boulud's East Village outpost has the classics covered, including butternut squash soup, roasted turkey with rye stuffing and an Alsatian apple tart with hard cider sorbet. However, the showstopper might be The Gobbler: a stacked turkey burger finished with roasted pumpkin seeds, cranberry ketchup and the promise of a long winter's nap.

Bubby's

$75 suggested donation, 120 Hudson St., 73 Gansevoort St. Proceeds from the pay-what-you-can buffet-style dinner benefit the NYC Rescue Mission — so, if possible, pay what you can and then a bit more. On the lineup: deviled farm-raised eggs, free-range turkey, glazed ham with spiced apricot sauce and candied sweet potatoes with marshmallows. MONICA WEYMOUTH

Miss Lily's / PROVIDED

Caribbean

Miss Lily's

$38 per person, 130-132 W. Houston St. This SoHo hot spot's Caribbean twist on the classics is going to make you think blasphemous thoughts about your family's traditional dinner. Mom's famous stuffing? Meet Miss Lily's jerk sausage version, served as part of an all-star main course that also includes jerk turkey with gravy, mac-and-cheese pie and cranberry chutney. If you'd prefer to pretend like you cooked, there's also a delivery and take-out menu.

A better solution

The immigration problem is not exclusive to people who cross our southern border illegally. A diverse group of families chooses illegal immigration for myriad reasons. What's more, many of these immigrants came legally and overstayed their visas. They want to come out of the shadows and contribute more to our country. While not encouraging people to break laws, we need a thoughtful, permanent solution to this complex problem.

I'm honestly still kind of shocked the people believe in a magic pill. It's as good as snake oil. If you are going to diet, it needs to be a lifestyle change, it's not just popping a pill or some other food item every day. Like I said, if you had a healthy diet and lifestyle, you wouldn't need the pill. I'm currently dieting myself, and it's all fresh, clean eating in the right proportions — no pills. W.D. ### Yankees may target Scherzer

The Yankees are "sleeping giants" when it comes to potentially signing free agent righty Max Scherzer, according to a National League executive in an ESPN report. "He's the best [available]," the executive said. "He has a little less mileage, and what he does is more sustainable." James Shields and Jon Lester are other top-notch starters that are available.

Daily fantasy sports industry is booming

Fantasy sports.

Online sports gambling is illegal, but DraftKings and FanDuel are exempt from the law.

We're living in the golden age of fantasy sports, and companies like DraftKings and FanDuel are reaping the benefits.

The relatively new companies target a specific segment of fantasy sports players: those who want action each and every day.

For instance, in regular fantasy baseball leagues, owners draft their teams prior to the start of the season and the only way they can add or dump players on their roster throughout the season is through trades or through the waiver wire.

In the world of daily fantasy, owners can draft entirely new teams each and every night. Got a hunch David Ortiz is going to go 4-for-4 at the plate tonight? Draft him, and hope others don't.

The daily fantasy industry is growing rapidly and along the way it is also making millionaires out of some of their more skilled — or lucky — owners. Denver native Peter Jennings quit his job at Charles Schwab in 2011 in order to focus on daily fantasy sports full time. It paid off. Jennings won $1 million in a DraftKings tournament this past August and had won hundreds of thousands of dollars prior to that.

"I realized that playing daily fantasy was becoming more lucrative than my day job," Jennings told Metro. "I was a poker player throughout college and I was playing regular fantasy sports for a while, but the day I found out about daily fantasy, it was a euphoric experience."

Jennings and the Big 2 companies insist that those who win big aren't just gamblers on a hot streak. They call it a "game of skill," and say that most everyone who has become wealthy playing daily fantasy analyzes sports statistics for hours upon hours each day.

"It's much like trading on the stock market, except you're buying individual players," Jennings said. "I've played hundreds of thousands of [daily fantasy] games. I'm confident it's a game of skill. It's definitely a game of skill. It's very data-driven — you're always crunching numbers. And it's very hard to be a good player."

Gambling on sports online was outlawed in the United States in 2006 due to that year's Unlawful Internet Gambling Enforcement Act. But the act excluded fantasy sports that met specific requirements. FanDuel began its site in 2009. DraftKings popped up in 2012.

Buffalo snow getting in way of Jets-Bills

It might be sub-freezing in New York City this week, but it could be worse for the Jets as they practice for Week 12's game against the Bills. They could already be in Buffalo.

Meteorologists at the Weather Channel tell Metro that Buffalo has already received 65 inches of lake-effect snow. A second round of significant lake-effect snow will begin Wednesday evening into Thursday, resulting in another five to eight inches of snow for the region. If that wasn't enough, warming temperatures this weekend and a chance of rain may lead to snowmelt flooding concerns, according to the Weather Channel.

"It is hard to imagine what they're going through," Jets head coach Rex Ryan said of the Bills.

Ralph Wilson Stadium is used to the snow, but this 2014 storm is a different animal. / GETTY IMAGES

Heavy snowfall is throwing a loop in Buffalo's practice schedule leading up to Sunday's game.

"I have not heard anything," Ryan said on Wednesday. "We're planning on playing one way or another, whatever the league says."

Current estimates have 22,000 tons of snow currently inside Ralph Wilson Stadium, an amount that would fill the Bills practice facility eight times over.

Pickups of the week

Here are the best adds for Week 12:

- Coby Fleener, TE, Colts: Fleener will get a big uptick if Dwayne Allen (ankle) sits.
- Isaiah Crowell, RB, Browns: Crowell fumbled in Week 11 and CLE went right back to him, signifying he's ahead of Terrance West.

Tom Brady is, arguably, the greatest bad-weather quarterback of all time. / GETTY IMAGES

Winter is coming. Or, if you live in Buffalo, it's already here. Either way, weather is inevitably going to affect NFL games the rest of the way. But all conditions are not created equal as we attempt to project impact. What to look for:

Wind is king

Ask any NFL quarterback or coach what bothers the pass game most and they won't say rain, snow or cold. They'll say wind.

We also have data on this, as winds over 15 mph have been proven to sharply decrease the always-telling yards per attempt (YPA) statistic. Wind speed is simple to monitor on Sunday mornings while setting lineups and gives us a hidden edge. Borderline QBs and WRs just can't be used with sustained 15-plus mph winds — unless you have Tom Brady.

Know your arm

Of course, there are some quarterbacks who fare better in poor conditions. The aforementioned Brady is perhaps the greatest bad-weather quarterback ever and he put that on display in Week 9, ripping through strong winds and the Broncos for 333 yards and four touchdowns. Quarterbacks with weaker arms, such as Peyton Manning or Philip Rivers, come with more red flags. Expectations need to be tempered when they're outside braving winter elements.

On the defensive

Slick conditions are great for producing fumbles and crooked plays, and even cold temps can really bother some quarterbacks. Mark Sanchez, a California kid, went to sub-freezing temps at Lambeau last week and predictably melted down, leading to a massive day for Green Bay's D/ST.

Manning defends

Manning pokes fun at Barber

Eli Manning and Tiki Barber aren't exactly best friends.

So when the Giants' signal caller saw his former running back comment on Tom Coughlin's future (he said this would be the coach's last season), Manning flashed a little sarcasm.

"That's nice of him. ... It's good to hear from ol' Tiki," Manning said.

Though Manning, fresh off a five-interception performance in a loss to the 49ers (the Giants' fifth straight loss), claims not to have read any of Barber's comments, he did see the headlines and disagreed with his assessment wholeheartedly.

"Coach is doing a great job," Manning said. "He gets us ready and we just got to perform better. It's not a lack of effort. Guys are practicing hard, guys want to do well, guys are into it and in tune and excited about the week."
